

The Best of Tokyo’s Culinary Scene in One Place – Popular Food Festival “Tokyo Tokyo Delicious Museum” Set to Return in Spring 2026

Experience a delectable blend of cuisine, culture, and entertainment featuring Tokyo’s top chefs, restaurants, and food artisans in May 2026

For the past four years, Tokyo Tokyo Delicious Museum has established itself as one of Tokyo’s premier gourmet festivals. This large-scale event attracts tens of thousands of locals and tourists each year, offering a vibrant celebration of Tokyo’s dynamic food culture.

From May 15 to 17, 2026, the Tokyo Tokyo Delicious Museum Executive Committee, together with the Tokyo Metropolitan Government, will bring back this highly anticipated event. In addition to traditional Tokyo dishes such as sushi and tempura, the three-day festival features a wide range of Japanese and international cuisine, showcasing Tokyo as one of the world’s leading dining destinations.

Attendees can enjoy a smorgasbord of Japanese dishes including the world-renowned Edomae sushi and ramen, as well as beloved comfort foods such as tempura and soba, to name just a few. On the drinking front, offerings will include sake and many other Japanese beverages.

Tokyo Tokyo Delicious Museum will bring together more than 40 of Tokyo's top restaurants in one convenient location, from hard-to-book establishments to long-standing historical favorites and trending eateries that draw long lines.

Visitors have praised Tokyo Tokyo Delicious Museum for helping them deepen their appreciation of Japanese food and discover new restaurants they would like to visit. This year, too, those looking to immerse themselves further in Japanese cuisine will be able to participate in hands-on workshops to pick up cooking tips from experts.

To make this a fun day out for visitors of all ages, Tokyo Tokyo Delicious Museum will also feature live music performances to enhance the festive atmosphere. English-speaking staff will be on hand to assist international visitors, ensuring that everyone enjoys a memorable experience at the festival.
